TAMPICO FALLS TO HANDS OF REBELS IN FIERCE STRUGGLE

General Gonzales Takes the Mexican Seaport; Federalists Retreating

HUNDREDS SLAIN IN CITY'S STREETS

Federal Troops Blow Up the Barracks Before Retreating

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Tampico has fallen into the hands of the revolutionary forces, according to a dispatch from Rear Admiral Mayo, communicated to the Navy Department by Rear Admiral Badger. The Federal forces have evacuated the city, and thus left one of the few remaining strongholds of the de facto Government of Mexico in the possession of the enemy.

Gratification was expressed at the news in Administration circles, especially at the State Department, where the success of the rebel arms has been prayed for fervently.

Tampico succumbed to a general assault by rebel infantry, the soldiers under the supreme command of Generals Pablo Gonzales and Luis Caballeros advancing under heavy artillery fire.

It is impossible to estimate the number of dead, but the slaughter during the 36 hours of the siege was horrifying, and hundreds of slain obstructed the streets.

General Zaragoza's troops showed fierce resistance, making their final stand at the abandoned Southern Hotel. Ambushed behind the pillars of the old hostelry, the Federal sharpshooters picked off the rebels by scores and prevented their advance for some time. Federalists were also lodged on the roofs of the hotel, the Customs House and other houses, the victorious rebels subduing them only after hard and deadly hand-to-hand encounters on the parapets.

General Zaragoza fought valiantly himself and urged his men on long after all chance of victory had gone. He escaped with his life.

Evacuation by the Mexican Federal garrison began at 12:50, Wednesday. The Federal troops were leaving by the railroad.

J. C. C. MAYO IS LAID TO FINAL REST

Prominent Kentuckian Who Died in New York Buried in Pineville

PAINTSVILLE, KY., May 14.—John C. C. Mayo was buried this morning from the Methodist Church here, services began at 10:30 o'clock. Five thousand people, one of the largest concourses ever gathered in Kentucky, attended.

Gov. McCreary headed a party of State officials, while U. S. Senator C. W. Watson and Congressman C. B. Slemp, of West Virginia, headed a delegation from the National Congress. A special train brought a party of capitalists from the north and east, many of whom were connected with Mr. Mayo in big business enterprises.

The train carrying the body of Mr. Mayo arrived here at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning on a special car. Accompanying it were Mrs. Mayo, John, 13, and Margaret, 8; his father, T. J. Mayo; a brother, Washington Mayo; a sister, Mrs. Fred Atkinson, and Mr. Atkinson; John E. Buckingham, Percy Haley, W. S. Dudley, of Carlisle, and C. J. Howes.

Citizens of Paintsville, lifelong friends of Mr. Mayo, paid their tribute of affection and respect to the dead man by waiting at the station until the body was taken to the Mayo home a mile and a half away. All the stores of Paintsville were closed, and remained so until after the funeral.

DRYS ARE AWARDED THE DECISION IN JESSAMINE

The county unit election held in Jessamine county in June, 1913, is valid, and Jessamine county, including the city of Nicholasville, will be dry until voted wet, the Appellate Court decided Tuesday in the case of M. P. Welch against W. S. Irvine. The drys carried the county by a large majority, but it was alleged by the wets that the city of Nicholasville should remain wet, as it had voted wet only two years previously.

VICTORY OF GOVERNOR BECKHAM IN PRIMARY

Mr. T. C. Cromwell, political writer for the Cincinnati Enquirer in Kentucky, and a supporter of Mr. A. O. Stanley for the Senatorial nomination, in his letter Sunday concedes ex-Governor Beckham's nomination in August. Mr. Cromwell is well posted on political events in Kentucky, and he says that two out of every three Democrats he has met are for Beckham. The article threw consternation in the Stanley camp, and it is understood that his friends are ready to give it up and concede Governor Beckham's election.

The article, as it appeared, is as follows:

"It is just twelve weeks until the State primary election at which, on August 1, the United States Senatorial nominations will be made, and this far advance of the day it seems certain that former Governor J. C. W. Beckham, in keeping with the forecast given in this column last December as the result of a canvass of the counties by letter, will be the choice of the Democrats. A. O. Stanley and Governor James B. McCreary will, of course, not agree with the statement, for they both contend that their races are in satisfactory shape, and each professes belief that he will win. But as long as they both continue in the race there is no chance for either of them to beat Beckham, unless there should come unexpectedly some powerful force and reversion, and there would be now small chance of either winning with the other out of Beckham is crystallizing, and the supporters of both Stanley and deploring it but they appear powerless to stop it. About two out of every three men one meets will say that Beckham is certain to win the nomination, though many at the same time declare that they do not intend to vote for him."

C. M. THOMAS MAY RUN FOR CONGRESS

Bourbon Man Will Probably Oppose Cantrill in the August Primary

The Hon. Claude M. Thomas, of Paris, former State Senator from the Bourbon-Clark-Montgomery district, may become a candidate for the Democratic nomination from the Seventh Congressional district to succeed the Hon. J. Campbell Cantrill. No formal announcement has been made, it is ascertained from personal interviews with Mr. Thomas that he is seriously contemplating entering the race, and his friends here declare it will be a matter of but a few days before he will cast his hat into the ring.

From all reports the most encouraging support has been pledged Mr. Thomas, and calls have been issued from a number of counties in the district, urging him to become a candidate. In addition to this it is said he has been making visits to the counties of the district, where it is said his strength would not be more than equally divided with Cantrill, and his conference with his friends and supporters have been of the most encouraging nature.

Supporters of Mr. Thomas in Bourbon are confident that he will be able to put up the fight of his political career in the coming primary in August, and that he would undoubtedly come out the victor over Cantrill. This would be due, in a great measure, to the opposition of the latter to the Webb measure, introduced in Congress, and to the general dissatisfaction among the voters occasioned by his activity in securing the appointment of several postmasters, in the face of endorsements against them presented by Democratic organizations of several counties.

CHANGES TAKE PLACE IN L. & N. DISPATCHERS OFFICE.

A number of changes have taken place during the past few days in the train dispatcher's office of the Louisville & Nashville railroad company in this city. The position of assistant master of trains, which was held by Mr. W. K. Griffith, has been abolished and Mr. Griffith has assumed his old position as train dispatcher. Mr. Henry Terrill, who was chief dispatcher, has been reduced in rank and the clerkship to the chief dispatcher held by G. F. Durant, has been abolished. Thomas McDonald, who held the position as night chief, has been transferred to the dispatcher's desk, and other members of the office force who were advanced recently, when a vacancy occurred have been returned to their old positions.

COUNCIL READY TO ACCEPT BIDS FOR NEW STREET

No Contractor Present But Bids Are to Be Submitted in Few Days

RESTAURANTS ARE GRANTED LICENSES

Mayor Hinton Appoints Tax Supervisors for the Year of 1914

Although the City Council at its regular meeting last night was ready to receive bids for the reconstruction of Main street none were presented to the Board, but it is probable that within the next few days bids for the work will be submitted by several different construction firms and will be taken up at a special meeting of the Council to be called by Mayor Hinton.

Several firms have signified their intention of bidding on the work of resurfacing the Main street with material best suited for travel, and Mayor Hinton received information yesterday that the bid of one firm would be put in his hands to-day.

The Council took up the matter of granting licenses for the year required on such businesses as specified in the ordinance passed at the last meeting in April. There were several rejections for restaurant license and one pool room was refused, while Max Munich who applied for a license to conduct a junk yard was also refused by the Board. Munich presented a petition to the Council signed by several property owners on Eighth street and vicinity, in which no objection was voiced. The license was refused upon the grounds that at the last term of Circuit Court he was fined $50 for maintaining a nuisance and an indictment against the city was returned by the grand jury for suffering a nuisance.

James E. Craven was granted a license to conduct a restaurant on Main street. T. F. Brannon, who applied for a license to conduct a restaurant in connection with his saloon was also refused. Henry Field was granted a license to conduct a restaurant on Eighth street. Ed. Parker was refused a license to conduct a restaurant on Eighth street. Ratliff & Reed, granted a license to conduct a restaurant at the L. & N. depot. Jas. J. Curtis, who applied for restaurant license was refused. W. S. Orr and Hammond Bros., restaurant on Tenth street, granted license. Paul Hanley, restaurant on Main street, granted. Paris Billiard Co. granted license to conduct pool room at the corner of Main and Fifth streets. Steve Moore, to operate pool room in connection with saloon, refused license. Lykins Bros. granted license to operate pool room on Tenth street.

The Improvement Committee was instructed by the Mayor to investigate the piece of property at the end of Parrish Avenue in Henry Division and which separates that street and Link Avenue, with a view of purchasing it from its owners, Messrs. Hal Woodford and R. K. McCarney, and to report at the next regular meeting of the Council. The purchase of this property will give the city the opportunity of opening the street through to Link Avenue.

Mayor Hinton appointed the following as members of the Board of Tax Supervisors which were approved by the Council: C. J. Lancaster, Wm. Thomas and Walker Muir.

Mayor Hinton and the Council instructed Chief of Police Link to have removed all wagons and obstructions that might be left standing on side streets, and the owners will be compelled to comply with the order strictly. The Chief of Police was also instructed to have removed from the sidewalks of Main or other streets any boxes, barrels and displays of goods other than those permitted by a city ordinance now in force.

WIDE VARIETY OF SHEEP FOR FARMERS TO CHOOSE FROM.

Farmers who contemplate the raising of sheep on their farms are urged by the United States Department of Agriculture to give considerable thought to the selection of a breed.
In all there are thirty breeds of improved sheep that have been brought to fixed types. Of these twelve are already well established in the United States and others are gaining in popularity. Each has its own points of superiority and the farmer must be guided in his choice by the individual conditions, bearing in mind, however,
the fact that any breed is superior to no breed.

Although it is hardly to be expected that every farmer in a neighborhood
will select the same breed of sheep, there are several advantages to be derived from a number doing so. For example, new rams can be purchased for the common benefit when any individual owner might well hesitate at the expense, and if the lambs are ready in large numbers for market
at the same time, they may be shipped cheaply by the carload of the buyers
may find it worth their while to come after them.

In selecting a breed it should be remembered that no system of sheep farming is likely to be long successful which leaves out of account either wool or mutton. One or the other, however, may well be emphasized according to local conditions. Thus if pasturage is sparse, feed expensive
and marketing arrangements poor,
wool will naturally be the first consideration. On the other hand, where condition are more favorable, a breed will be selected for its mutton qualities. Even then, however, there is a wide latitude of choice.

In order to assist the farmer in the Agricultural Department has published Farmers' Bulletin 576, "Breeds of Sheep for the Farm," descriptions of the Secretaries of various breeding associations, from whom additional information can be obtained. These breeds may be divided into three main groups, the Middle Wool, the Long Wool and the Fine Wool. All the Middle Wool breeds have been developed primarily for mutton. The Long Wools also are bred chiefly for mutton. They are the largest of all sheep and thrive best where food can be obtained without much travel.
They do well also in regions of excessive rainfall. The Fine Wools, including the American Merinos and the Rambouillet, have been bred almost entirely for their wool alone.

Some of these many breeds, says
the bulletin, should be selected and maintained, for it is rarely good policy
to cross sheep.

RESULTS THAT REMAIN

Are Appreciated By Paris People.

Thousands who suffer from backache and kidney complaint have tried one remedy after another, finding only temporary benefit. This is discouraging, but there is one kidney medicine that has earned a reputation for lasting results and there is plenty of proof of its merits right here in Paris.
Here is the testimony of one who used Doan's Kidney Pills years ago, and now makes her testimony even stronger.

Mrs. J. T. Martin, Pleasant and Eleventh streets, Paris, Ky., says: "I suffered quite severely from pains across the small of my back, and in my kidney. The trouble alarmed me and I tried many medicines. I did not get relief, however, until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Wilson's (now Butler & Co's) drug store. They improved my condition in every way.
All I have ever said praising Doan's Kidney Pills was entirely correct and I confirm my former endorsement of this remedy. They permanently cured me of kidney trouble."

PROGRESS BEING MADE ON SAN DIEGO EXPOSITION

SAN DIEGO, CAL., May 13.—With
the formal acceptance by San Diego's Panama-California Exposition of the work on the big Southern California building, the progress of the construction on the grounds has received a strong impetus.

This structure, representing the seven southern counties of the State, is the first of the county or State buildings to be completed. It is an important feature of the entire architectural scheme, standing dominantly almost at the east entrance to the grounds, on the spot where the visitors will continue straight ahead down the isthmus, where lie the amusement concessions, and the Alameda, along which are scattered the outdoor exhibits, or turn to the west and proceed down the Prado.

The exposition buildings along the Prado are rapidly approaching completion. The Home Economy, Arts and Crafts and Science and Educational buildings are already finished, and the plaster is now going on the Foreign Arts, Botanical, Commerce
and Industries, and varied industries and food products buildings. The administration building, the fire station and the hospital, of course, have long been occupied.

But all these buildings are those of the main Exposition. The significance of the smooth, clean floors and walls of the Southern California building is that here is the first of the State and county buildings to make its formal bow to the world. It heralds the completion of the other State and county buildings, mainly to rise about the Plaza International and on the plateau lying between the Cabrillo and Espagnol canyons, dedicated to the work of bringing before the world the unlimited possibilities of the great West.

In this great group the buildings of the San Joaquin Valley and the State of New Mexico are already well advanced. The latter is a reproduction of the great adobe mission at Acoma, built in 1699 to replace the first church, dating back to 1629, when Fray Juan Ramirez, began his long residence in the pueblo. The reproduction stands at the edge of the Cabrillo canyon overlooking the laguna and the lofty Puente Cabrillo of the seven arches.

As the new buildings approach completion, plans will be made for ceremonies similar to those attending the acceptance of the Southern California structure. For this occasion there came the supervisors of the seven counties, the Exposition officials and many members of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce, all to sit about the table in the main hall for the first formal luncheon served in such a building. The installation of the exhibits will start shortly, to be finished probably by September, that the flowers and vines may be fully grown by the time the Exposition opens on January 1, 1915, to continue through the year.

The Rotary Clubs of California
have taken up the idea of Fred Golding of the Los Angeles Rotary Club and joined enthusiastically in the program for telling the East, Canada and Great Britain about the Panama-California Exposition. The program is as novel as is the formation of the Rotary Club, whose membership is restricted to one representative of each line of endeavor in the community the individual club serves.

Roger M. Andrews, president of the Los Angeles Rotray Club, will start shortly on a tour of the various clubs of the organization scattered through the country, bearing with him a golden wheel, the insignia of the club.
Between the spokes will be smaller wheels, representing the seven California cities where the Rotary clubs are established. As Mr. Andrews completes his visit to each Eastern city there will be added a miniature wheel to the rim.

Everywhere he will tell what San Diego is going to show to the world in 1915. The expense of the trip, to start in a few weeks, will approximate $10,000. The Rotray Clubs of the country will hold their meeting in Houston, Texas, in June, and a large faction is urging that at that meeting
the National organization decide to meet next year in San Diego.

CHAS. GREEN, Mgr.

Opp. Court House

MR. LEWIS A. RIFFLE tells his experience with coughs and colds that lead to nervousness and debility.

Colds are often aggravated during the Summer because inactive bowels and a stomach out of order are prime causes in keeping a cold from getting well.

Pe-ru-na has very beneficial laxative qualities that neutralize such conditions. Its tonic ingredients tone up the system, and thus invigorate the stomach's functions to normal activity.

Mr. Riffle's experience is especially interesting at this time of the year because it shows the close relationship there is between a nervous breakdown and a neglected cold.

Pe-ru-na should be kept in the home at all times, that a cold upon its first appearance may be treated promptly and successfully. This often saves money and time, and what is more important, a great deal of vitality.

Mr. Riffle, of 753 Gautenbein Ave., Portland, Ore., writes: "I have found Pe-ru-na a most remarkable medicine for building up the system and for curing coughs and colds."

"I took it for four weeks a few months ago when I was all run down, nervous and debilitated, and it quickly restored my health."

"I always keep it on hand, as a few doses will cure a cold if taken in time."

People who object to liquid medicines can now obtain Pe-ru-na Tablets.

Let your Painter make this test

Take two brushfuls of paint—one of "High Standard" and one of the other brand—and see for yourself how much farther "High Standard" goes. Then figure how much less paint it would require to cover your building when you use the paint of proven performance. You will see that even if it cost more per gallon it will still cost less by the job.

For the paint that gives best results always look for the "Little Blue Flag" on the label. You will get a job of painting that will retain its freshness and beauty and give your building the best protection from the destructive action of the elements.

RECEIVING CERTIFICATES ACCORDING TO CUSTOM.

Certificates of authority of all the foreign fire insurance companies to do business in Kentucky will expire June 30, the close of the fiscal year. These certificates are renewed annually by the State Insurance Department without application if the companies have complied with the laws and are considered financially sound. There has been no intimation of any intention of the insurance department to refuse a certificate to any of the companies which have not voluntarily asked for the cancellation of their certificates, and as their agents' licenses have expired many of the companies which gave notice that they had suspended writing business in Kentucky have applied for the renewal of their agents' licenses. It is intimated as unlikely that the present situation will be further aggravated by drastic action in regard to non-compliance with the regulations of the rating board when the time comes for renewing certificates of authority to do business.

Distilleries are experiencing little trouble in securing insurance on their warehouse stocks, according to the bankers. Brokers, who give bond to secure the premium tax, are authorized to insure risks in unauthorized companies, and a Frankfort broker said that he had placed hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth insurance on whisky; but he has been unable to get insurance on commercial risks and tobacco. The whisky is a better risk, he said, and outside companies will take this, when they will not take a chance on a merchant's stock of goods or tobacco or real estate risks. There are less than a dozen brokers' licenses issued in Kentucky.

The last act passed by the General Assembly was designed to alleviate an anticipated situation such as confronts Kentucky now. It authorizes Kentucky companies to reinsure their risks in foreign companies not licensed to do business in the State, subject to the approval of the State Insurance Department, and on condition that the Kentucky company pays the 2 per cent. premium tax. This practically expands the capacity of local companies for handling the business to the extent of the added resources of the underwriting company. How far this will go toward taking care of the risks remains to be seen. There are seven stock companies in Kentucky, either authorized to do business or in process of organization; three mutual and twenty-six assessment companies, according to the last report of the Insurance Department.

FRIEDMAN CURE HAS PROVED A FAILURE.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—After observing patients who have been treated with Dr. Frederick F. Friedman's vaccine for fourteen months, Dr. Manheimer, of New York, declared that this so-called cure for tuberculosis has exhibited neither curative nor preventative powers. He made his report before the clinical section of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, now in session here.

"In March, 1913," said Dr. Manheimer, "eighteen patients were treated under my supervision. Of these fifteen can be followed up, and of that number three are dead. The number of injections in these cases were one, two and four respectively. Of the remaining twelve patients, ten received one, and two received four injections. Five of the ten patients who received one injection developed abscesses at the site of the injection and were, therefore, unsuitable for further injections, according to the inventor. The other five patients were not reinjected, either because they did not see the improvement they had been led to expect, or because they had become worse and had lost confidence in Friedman. As to their present condition, five of them are now unchanged and five are worse than a year ago."

"One patient who had four injections feels well and presents signs of an arrested lung process, but he has not gained in weight and has developed a new tuberculosis process in another part of the body."

"The second patient with four injections has tuberculosis of the knee joint and is now decidedly worse than before."

"The infiltrate of the fourth injection broke down and discharged pus. Where abscesses resulted at the site of the first injection, the vaccine apparently produced no additional harmful effect. The disease remained uninfected."

"Friedman neglected to prevent abscesses formation, although he claimed to know how. To be very charitable, one might judge from one single case, that decided natural healing tendencies, aided by common sense treatment, will not be hindered by the remedy."

"When in a quiescent case the first subjective and objective symptoms of a new outbreak appear, and one naturally wishes to check it, the remedy is absolutely worthless for that purpose. It cannot prevent the tendency to spread, if a case is so disposed. The method of its administration has been anything but careful and intelligent. For these reasons, and on account of the absence of curative and preventative powers in this series, it cannot be recommended."

Switzerland, in 1912, imported $579,000 worth of lumber from the United States.

Mrs. McLeod had been in declining health for several months, but was seriously ill only about ten days. Her death was due to the infirmities of old age. She is survived by seven children, four daughters, Mrs. J. W. Jacoby, Mrs. M. R. Jacoby, Mrs. Jno. Donaldson, and Mrs. Hall Snell, all of near Hutchison; three sons, John McLeod, of Chilesburg; George McLeod, of Centerville; James McLeod, of Fayette county.

Patten is a prominent attorney of Breathitt county, but the case was taken to Harrodsburg on a change of venue. It was the fourth time the case had been called, but it was postponed three times. There was a big crowd of Patten's friends in the court room who cheered the verdict. The jury had been in charge of the sheriff four days and four nights.

JURY RETURNS VERDICT OF ACCIDENTAL DEATH

McKenney, who was killed last Saturday morning in the yard of the Louisville & Nashville railroad when he fell beneath an engine which he attempted to board. Three witnesses, Jesse Fuller, an engine hostler, Wm. Brennan, fireman on the locomotive, and Bosley Parrish, a call boy, who witnessed the accident, were examined and upon the statements they gave the jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

THREE STATE HOSPITALS SAID TO BE OVERCROWDED

Crowding of the State Hospitals has progressed to such an extent that the State Board of Control is refusing admission to people committed to the institution.

Lakeland has 1,600 inmates, 100 more than its normal capacity; Hopkinsville has 1,200, although its capacity is only 1,100, and Lexington has 1,250, which is 150 more than it can satisfactorily take care of.

The dormitories are overcrowded and every foot of available room is utilized as quarters for the inmates. It is said that counties are emptying their almshouses of harmless weak minded into the institutions, victims of the drug and liquor habits are declared insane and sent there and the increase is greater than the number of those restored and sent home and those that die.

CAPTURE OF VERA CRUZ IN 1847.

(New York Press.)

In the parlor of a Harlem apartment an old man sat in the sunshine streaming through the Southern window, and sketched out on the back of a rumpled newspaper a map of the operation at the siege of Vera Cruz in 1847.

"Worth's division held our right, Twigg's with Patterson and the batteries, were in the center," he said. "I took out the first shovel of earth from the trenches where lay our mortars that dropped ten-inch shells into the city and killed a thousand Mexicans."

He paused and there was silence, save for the creak of the pencil on paper. In the next room his daughter, herself an elderly woman, was moving quietly about, preparing dinner.

That was real fighting," he went on presently, "when Winfield Scott was our leader—Winfield Scott, and before him old Rough-and-Ready Zach Taylor. To be sure, it was a long time ago. I am an old man now—most ninety years—but I will never forget the day—the 29th of March it was, in 1847—when General Morales and his men marched out of the Gate of Mercy and stacked their arms at the edge of the hills behind the city, and how we went down there to the old castle and the forts to look over the destruction our shell had done."

Old Jeremiah Albeeshook his white head. He was one of the few living veterans of the Mexican War—one of the very few—for a man to have fought in the campaign of 64 years ago must, if still alive, must be close to the age of 90. Time has touched lightly the head of Mr. Albee. Only the snow and the wrinkles and the high tremolo voice bear testimony to its ravages.

When General Patterson took his division of New York volunteers to the front in 1846 Albee marched in the ranks as a private. One of the youngest men in the regiment, he fought at the siege of Vera Cruz, and shortly after received a wound that sent him home on a furlough that lasted longer than the war.

Despite his years his faculties are still keen, his eyes bright and his memory of the events of his service at the front is unimpaired. In characteristic manner he told of the landing of the United States troops on Callado Beach, near Vera Cruz, and contrasted that invasion with the recent one when Admiral Fletcher's blue jackets pulled ashore in the face of the Mexican Mausers.

"It was different when we landed on March 9, 1847, than when our sailors went ashore last week," he said. "We drew no fire when we were loaded into whaleboats, 65 men to a boat, and rowed into the beach that hot March day. It was only when we tried to take the city that we met with the heroic resistance which characterized the stand of General Morales and his men in that first siege. It seems to me that the Mexicans are a degenerating race. Their cowardly manner of warfare, which has been so much in evidence of late, in no way resembles the spirit. There were two stone forts, Ft. Ed when we first pushed into their country so many years ago. Then firing from house-tops, like Indians."

"We had come down to Vera Cruz harbor on transports and warships, about 10,000 of us, to take the city, which was then one of the most heavily fortified of the Mexican cities. There were two stone forts, Ft. Conception and Ft. Santiago, besides the Castle of San Juan de Ulloa. All were equipped with big guns, and were strongly garrisoned—General Scott was at the head of the army—decided to land the troops down the beach two or three miles from the city. They had not been decided upon when Commander Connor had been requested by 'Old Rough-and-Ready' Zachary Taylor to pick out the best place for disembarking."

"I remember the first meeting between General Taylor and Commander Connor. The Commodore was always known as a great dandy—one who was always scrupulously dressed in full uniform. On the other hand, 'Rough-and-Ready' dug down into his drawers more than half dressed at any time. But knowing Connor's name as a stickler for military formality, old 'Rough-and-Ready' dug down into his trunk and got out a worn and tattered full-dress uniform, which he got into for the reception of the Commodore, getting the waistcoat on inside out and buttoning the second button of the high-standing collar in the fourth buttonhole. Then he sat down in quite discomfort to await the arrival of Commander Connor."

"Well, the Commodore, also wishing to be polite, knew the hatred of 'Rough-and-Ready' for formality and dress, so, instead of putting on his usual elegant suit, he got into a pair of overalls and an old jacket, and in this rig called unattended at Taylor's tent. The story got about, and was a great joke for a long time."

"But to get back to our landing, it was a beautiful day, the sun was brightly reflected from the white roofs of Vera Cruz in the distance. The water was deep blue, and the spirits of our boys were high. Under cover of a fire of shells from the gunboat Vixen, just as our men landed last week under the Prairie's fire, we rowed ashore, expecting every minute that we would be met with a hail of shot from the sand hills that sloped gradually back from the shore, and behind which we thought were Santa Anna's men. But we drew no fire, and found no Mexican soldiers on the beach. By night we had several thousand men ashore, and then we began our march back into the country to surround the city, cutting off from road communication with the interior, while our fleet blockaded the port."

"I was enlisted in Patterson's Volunteers. The first of our column to start inland was Trigg's Division. We followed, and Worth's Division brought up the rear. Under command of Brigadier General Pillow, Colonel Haskell's and Colonel Campbell's Tennessee Regulars and Colonel Wynkoop's Pennsylvania Regulars pushed back into the sand hills, encountering a few little parties of Mexican troops, who promptly retreated."

"We marched practically all night, and in the morning were near the Lime Kiln, which was later occupied by one of our field batteries. As we approached the Lime Kiln and a stone building used as a Mexican magazine, we were met with a fire from a body of Mexican troops, and a sharp engagement occurred. It was my first time under fire. I can remember how the bullets whizzed over our heads and knocked up the earth in front of us. Two or three men were killed and several wounded."

"We got possession of the magazine, and later established our field hospital there. One incident that I never forgot is how a solid shot from a Mexican field gun hit Captain Wm. Alburus. He was standing not far from me. Suddenly I saw him collapse. He was shot right in half. It seemed as though some invisible giant had taken out a huge scythe and with a single sweep severed his body at the waist, the two parts falling in opposite directions. I was horrified at the sight."

"From the 9th until the 13th we were marching around behind the city driving the enemy's outposts and bottling up the garrison and inhabitants behind the city walls. When we had finally drawn our lines, Twigg's holding the left extreme at Vergara, two miles from the city on the coast, with our division in the center, directly behind the city, we were pretty well tired out. It was terribly hot, and a series of northerly winds prevented the landing from our fleet of mules and provision trains, so we were on half rations, which had to be carried by men up into the hills."

"On the 15th we heard of the victory of Buena Vista; then we knew why Santa Anna had not been waiting to fight us on the shore. He had turned away in the direction of the Rio Grande instead. Also we knew that Vera Cruz was practically cut off from outside aid, and that our campaign had narrowed down to a mere siege of the city."

"Our supplies of mortars, 40 of which had been requested by General Scott, but only 10 of which had been shipped down from the North, were slow in arriving, and while some of us went to work digging trenches behind the city the rest were busy struggling with the cannon that had been landed, dragging them back through the sand to the position which had been selected for the planting of our siege batteries."

"On the 17th we were able to land provisions, as the northerly wind had been raging had abated, and on the 18th Phil Kearny's dragoons arrived. As I said, I tossed away one of the first shovels of earth from the American mortar pits, which we dug 900 yards from the city walls."

"By the 21st our first battery of 24-pounders was ready, and we were working on our mortar batteries. We then sent—or rather General Scott did—a formal demand to General Morales, in command of the city, to surrender, which he bravely refused."

"Tell It By The Bell"

to do, and on the 22d at 4:15 in the afternoon we opened fire.

"I had been assigned to one of the guns in the ten-inch mortar pit No. 2. It was from this pit that the first shell against the city was fired by Major Bankhead. We could see it soar into the air and descend in a great arc behind the city wall. A moment later we heard the distant, dull report as it exploded."

"From that time on our guns were practically never silent for four days. We worked in relays, firing at night and during the day. Commander Perry had sent ashore several thousand sailors and a battery of big guns from his vessels, and these did heavy execution. The castle and the forts replied to us steadily for three days, when their ammunition began to give out. Some of their shells were effective, for at the end of the battle our dead totaled 68 men. I remember hearing it going along the lines that General Scott had said he would take Vera Cruz without the loss of 100 men, and that he would consider himself the murderer of every one over that number who was killed."

"While our batteries were hard at work from the pits, the fleet was shelling the city from the harbor. The Mexican soldiers made a brave fight. They stood to their guns like men. We learned afterward that one of our shells, entering the magazine of Ft. Conception, blew it up, killing all in that section of the fort except one man. Another shell entered the female infirmary, killing 17 inmates. In yet another section surgeons were operating on a wounded man when suddenly a ten-inch shell came through the roof and exploded, putting out all the lights. When new lights were brought it was seen that both surgeons and patients had been blown to pieces."

"We fired an average of 180 shots an hour during most of the fight. At times we increased this number, but the order was to stick as near to it as possible. On the night of the 26, if I remember, the Mexicans sent out word that they wanted to parley. Before this the foreign Consuls had joined in a petition for a truce to take the women and children out of the city, but we had been forced to refuse to grant it on the grounds that we had given plenty of notice of our intention to bombard, which had been ignored by the Consuls."

"Well, the result of the truce for parley was that the Mexicans consented to surrender on condition that they be paroled and that no indignities be permitted in the city by our forces. General Scott accepted the terms, and on the 29th the defenders marched out and stacked their arms. Then we went down to the city."

"It was then I got my first idea of what war really was. There were 600 dead citizens in the city; there were 600 dead soldiers. The houses were knocked into kindling, and women and children lay dead under them. There was danger of disease breaking out."

"Houses were filled with wounded, whose cries filled the sunlight and the dark, alike, in never-ending monotone. We did what we could to restore order and bring comfort to the sufferers. Vera Cruz was ours, and that was the price we paid for it."

It is mighty fine to read about the days of old when knights were bold. But when one of these fellows was bolted into a sheet-iron shirt what happened when a chigger started boring a hole through the hide on the knight's back?

The Man Who Pulls Teeth With His Fingers.

Mr. A. D. Brown, the man who used to pull teeth with his fingers on stock sales days at Paris, Ky., and whose work was the talk of the whole county.

Last fall this same Mr. Brown came to Paris on Court Day and advertised a medicine known as Brown's Snake Oil Liniment, and left it for sale with Chas. E. Butler & Co., druggists of Paris, Ky. Since then Mr. Butler has sold hundreds of bottles of this wonderful medicine, and makes the broad statement that it has produced more cures than any medicine that was ever sold through his drug store.

Last Court Day Mr. Brown introduced on the streets, through Mr. Butler's drug store, a medicine known as Brown's Native Herbs in Liquid Form, and a great many bottles were sold under a positive guarantee that it would cure all forms of Stomach Trouble, Constipation, Catarrh, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Water Brash, Rheumatism, Kidney and Bladder Chills and Fever, Diseases common to Women.

Its introduction into every community has been followed by some of the most remarkable cures. Brown's Native Herbs in Liquid Form is guaranteed to cure Constipation, Indigestion, and to set the stomach right. It matters not of how long standing the disease may be. It at the same time tones up the entire nervous system, gives strength and vigor to those who are weak, sick and nervous. To prove all this we ask you to go and have a talk with Mr. Butler at his store, buy a bottle of the Native Herbs, and if it is not just as we recommend and advertise it, you can go back to Mr. Butler and he will give you your dollar just as cheerfully as he takes it. Brown's Native Herbs in Liquid Form and Brown's Snake Oil Liniment, remember, are sold under a positive guarantee. Try it today.

The Telephone and Good Roads

The telephone goes hand in hand with good roads.

The telephone overcomes many of the obstacles of bad roads and makes it possible for the farmer and other rural residents to transact business in the city and with neighbors when the roads are impassable.

Progressive farmers are insisting upon good roads and telephones. These two agencies of modern civilization are doing more than all others toward eliminating the isolation of country life. You can have a telephone in your home at very small cost. Send a postal for our free booklet giving complete information.

The Hall—First impressions are lasting and it is therefore essential that a good impression is secured. Entrance to the house is usually through the hall or reception room; for that reason it should suggest hospitality and be to some extent an index of what is to follow. Formerly the hall was not considered a part of the house and was a dark, gloomy place, a sort of a purgatory through which the travel had to pass to reach the heavenly rest beyond. Now, however, the decorations are more in keeping with the adjoining rooms. But care should be taken to have all the rooms in harmony. Our decorative department is at your service.

OLD-TIME CAPES IN NEW GUISES

Long Suede Gloves Match
Suede Uppers of Patent
Leather Shoes

DIRECTOIRE INFLU- ENCE STRONG

NEW YORK, May 14.—A year ago a couple of noted French dressmakers showed two capes, one transparent, which hung from the shoulders to the waist line in the back and disappeared mysteriously in the front, the other a cape of black satin, with jacket-like fronts belted at the waist. These capes were the forerunners of a vogue for capes. This season we have the little peelerine, which hangs from the back of the coat, we have the cape with surplice fronts, we have the Breton capes, and also the more severe styles, almost military.

A Long Full Cape Revealing a Skirt Whose Silhouette is No Longer Bouffant.

Taffeta evening wraps, which during the early part of the season were content with cape-like ruffles and rounded frills, have now evolved themselves into out-and-out capes. These fall to the knees with a second rippled cape, which falls just over the shoulders.

Another cape-like wrap of taffeta for evening wear is bordered with a ruffle of doubled taffeta. At the neck is a box-pleated ruff of the same silk, which looks like a Pierrot ruche.

The heavy serge cape I have illustrated is particularly dashing in its style and development. The cape is very full and godet in the back, and attached to a vest of Scotch plaid, which buttons straight down the front. This is a wrap admirably suited for the needs of the woman who motors, or who expects to spend a portion of vacation time coaching in the Yosemite or automobiling where the altitude or other climatic conditions make an extra wrap a necessity.

A cape which is decidedly modish for both evening and outdoor wear is the long and full Neapolitan cape with one corner thrown over the shoulder. In black they are not only charmingly picturesque, worn over a gown of butterfly hue, but are reminiscent of Italian romance, and intrigue in sunken garden, or ghostly godola.

Crepe-de-chine, lined with figured foulard, is used for another style, cut in the back as a circular cape; the front is a jacket, disclosed with a belt and odd revers. The back continues over the armholes, forming what might almost be called sleeves.

This influence of the cape is so strong that it is felt even in the designing of coats in silk and fancy wools. There are some interesting coats like the Inverness, an overcoat without sleeves, but having a long circular cape falling from the shoulders. Others are made with a cape which falls from the neck of the coat down the back; others have rippling shoulder capes, single, double and may be scalloped or shaped at the edges and bound with braid.

A successful coat has the back so full and loose that a rear view gives the impression of a cape, while another full coat has a cape, hanging below the coat length in the back and fastened in front into the raglan shoulder line, forming the loose sleeve.

Taffeta, moire, crepe-de-chine and chiffon, lined with silk, are fabrics which are used for these summer evening capes, coats, and wraps, while serge, tweed, cheviot and many novelty weaves in wool, light or heavy-weight fabrics are suitable for the capes for rough, daily wear.

Rippling capes of chiffon net and lace are seen on evening dresses, and even on separate blouses, but not for any practical reason, but because of their graceful trimming qualities.

The Directoire period is having a decided influence on the materials we are using as well as on the cut of the tailored suits. Stripes were a feature of that day, as they are of the present. A suit which I saw the other day, worn on Fifth Avenue, had a coat of dark blue gabardine, very short in front, with long swallow-tails in the back. The skirt worn with this coat was of striped gabardine. A crisp, flaring collar added to the general effect of the costume, which was distinctly Directoire. An incredible amount to say about the famous Madame Recamier could have found nothing to criticize about it.

A word about these striped worsted fabrics, which are among the season's most popular output. They come in soft and hard finished materials, and are accordingly blended or glaring in their effect. These are especially smart when used for the trimming of a waist of a costume having a long Dutch overskirt, the underskirt also being of stripes. The effect of this is clearly shown in my second illustration, which is made up in light-weight serge, with lower skirt and collar of ratine, crepe, and gingham all come in a variety of stripes, and could be used for the development of this frock, as its lines are simple and adaptable to wash fabrics.

Besides the Dutch overskirt, other tunics are slowly dropping, lower and lower, until it seems safe to say that they will drop low enough to satisfy the modesty of American women, after which the lower skirt will be left off and we will be wearing the old familiar straight skirts, only much shorter and fuller. After years of long, full skirts, and of long tight ones, who will be sorry to have a short, full skirt that will allow a free swinging stride.

The sheer linen collars are among the most necessary of the season's accessories. These are worn with almost every frock, whether tailored or elaborate. The opaque and stiffly starched Gladstone collars have a modern counterpart, sheer and softly starched. They are vastly becoming, as they stand away from the neck, framing the face in dainty white.

The Trimming Possibilities of the New Striped Materials on a Costume with a Full Dutch Overskirt.

Long gloves in cinnamon and biscuit-colored suede are being worn with afternoon dresses when the sleeves are three-quarter in length, while for the tailor-made suits, with long sleeves, a white mousquetaire kid glove or a two-clasp white cape glove should be worn.

Patent leather shoes with suede uppers, in gray or tan, are proper with cloth or gray serge tailored suits for general daytime wear. Colonial pumps, with Louis, Cuban heels, continue to be worn a great deal, and are made especially smart with vamps of patent leather, and the back and heels of the shoe in gray or tan suede. These should be worn with matching gray or tan silk stockings, matching or in accord with a color note of the costume.

If you wish to bring your new suit or frock up to the pink of fashion, have your gloves and the suede of your shoes match in color. In fact, it has been predicted that we will depart from the white gloves so universally worn and at present the proper thing.

Cola nuts, which have been exported from the gold coast of Africa to the value of about $450,000 annually for several years, advanced in 1912 to $650,000 worth. Exports from Southern Nigeria increased to nearly the same extent.

AFTER SUFFERING TWO LONG YEARS

Mrs. Aselin Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Minneapolis, Minn.—"After my little one was born I was sick with pains in my sides which the doctors said were caused by inflammation. I suffered a great deal every month and grew very thin. I was under the doctor's care for two long years without any benefit. Finally after repeated suggestions to try it we got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking the third bottle of the Compound I was able to do my housework and today I am strong and healthy again. I will answer letters if anyone wishes to know about my case."—Mrs. JOSEPH ASELIN, 628 Monroe St., N.E., Minneapolis, Minn.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy we know for woman's ills. If you need such a medicine why don't you try it?

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

GAS METER SHOWING GENERALLY CONCLUSIVE
Holding that the record of a gas meter must be accepted as conclusive evidence of the amount of gas consumed unless there was proof that the meter was inaccurate, County Judge Frank A. Bullock, in Lexington, Wednesday afternoon gave judgment for the defendant in all the cases but one in which consumers last winter complained of their January bills, and seventeen of them filed suit in the Fayette court against the Central Kentucky Natural Gas Company for recovery of what they considered the excess over proper charges. The one case in which Judge Bullock found for the plaintiff was that of G. A. C. Jones, who testified that his house had not been occupied at all during the month for which the bill was rendered, and therefore no gas whatever had been consumed. Notwithstanding this he had received a bill $1.48.

SACRED CONCERT WILL MARK OPENING OF THE CARNIVAL.

The Littlejohn Carnival Co., which will play an engagement in this city during the week of May 25, always carries an excellent band which will furnish the music for the entire week. The carnival will be formally opened on Sunday afternoon when a sacred concert will be given in front of the court house, and this feature should prove highly entertaining.

Plans for the holding of the carnival are shaping rapidly and an active advertising campaign will begin next week. The Eagles, under whose auspices the carnival will be given, are anticipating a record breaking week.

The Littlejohn Carnival Co., carries with it a number of the very high class attractions and are said to be the best that have ever gone out with a carnival company. New attractions are being added almost every week, and none are accepted that are not of the very highest order and clean in every respect.

It has been decided to hold the carnival in the city lot in the rear of the public school, and arrangements have already been made to secure the grounds for the week.
